Excerpt from The Berkeleyan, Vol. 23: Une, 1887 Josiah Gilbert Holland, whose Two Homes, published a year before his death, is worthy of mention. James Gates Percival, who himself says that his verse does not bear the marks of the file and burnisher, that he likes to see poetry in the full ebullition of fancy and feeling, foaming up with the spirit of life, and glowing with the rainbows of a glad inspiration, - a remark embodying the very criticism to which his sonnets are open. His most pleasing sonnet is If on the clustering curls of thy dark hair. Thomas Buchanan Read, whose Indian Summer isa good specimen of word-painting. William W. Story, whose Be of good cheer ye firm and dauntless few, is probably an apostrophe to Garrison, Phillips, and their fellow workers in the cause of abolition. Henry Theodore Tuckerman, whose Love Sonnets are pleasing enough to disarm criticism. Nathaniel Parker Willis, whose I care not that the world when I am dead is only remarkable from the fact that a young man in the glory of graduation from...
